Chapter 1 by Pineapple

The fly didn't know he was a fly. He thought he was a spider. The only problem with that was his wings. Spiders don't have wings. Therefore, the fly must get rid of them.

Chapter 2 by Wonder Story - In College

So he did. He went up to some window blinds and cut them off. The next problem was his legs. He didn't feel like waiting for them to grow out.

Aha, Dead flies on the window sill! He ripped their legs off and glued them onto himself with spit.

He looked at a spider that was crawling along the wall and still felt alone. His eyes were the problem. He needed 8 small ones.

Chapter 3 by Will Coloff

he looked down at the 3 dead flies, he then ripped their eyes out and glued them to his face with more spit. There, he was a spider, but then he saw that same spider weaving a web, cran, where is the fly going to get alot of web? Then the thought struck him. It was perfect, it was...

The guts of the dead flies on the window sill. He could use the guts to make a spider web so he did. He used spit to glue the guts of 4 flies to make a spider web and a fly landed on it he didn't know how to eat the fly then he thought of it. It was the best idea of his lifetime, it was...

Chapter 5 by xCringe

Magnificent, beautiful. But, you've guessed it ,then he saw a spider catch a bug with the web and eat it with fangs. Now, where is he going to find fangs. Meanwhile a human child is watching curiously, wondering if this was normal for a fly.

Chapter 6 by kristen.

He smiled because he knew what to do. He walked (because he didn't have wings anymore) and picked up two pointy crumbs. He stuck them in his mouth. Now he was ready.

Chapter 7 by Michele Lemon

He was so proud of his new absolutely normal magnificent body that he decided to make a move towards the spider. That was quite hard, considering his new legs refused to move. Finally he got close to the spider's web and greeted him with a loud "howdy".

The spider stopped to stare at him in awe. He thought there was wrong about this newcomer.

Chapter 8 by Pasty

The spider looked into the non-fly fly's beautiful eyes and said to him "lets get it on sweet tits." So they mated for 9 weeks straight and made spider-fly babies. One day later, the spider said, "Wait, these babies are part fly." The spider hired the caterpillar bounty hunter to kill the fly that mated with her.
